

Co-op / Internship Hiring and Supervising Process

Co-op Program

The Undergraduate Co-op is an accredited academic program in which students alternate semesters of full-time study with semesters of full-time paid work. Co-op students work with the same employer for three or more semesters – two of which must be a fall or spring - co-ops gain at least a year's worth of valuable professional work experience in their major. Their work experience is documented on their transcript. Work rotations typically begin as early as their sophomore year and as late as their junior year. Students earn the cooperative designation on their diploma when they complete the program's requirements.

Internship Program

The Georgia Tech Internship Program includes full- and part-time semesters of work experience. Interns typically work for one semester, but many students may work multiple internships and, in some cases, have the option of interning for two consecutive terms (spring and summer, or summer and fall). Students can complete multiple internships for the same employer or they may work for a different employer each work term. The majority of interns are juniors and seniors. Unpaid internships and community service assignments are also part of this program.

Supervisor & Student Goal Setting

Within the first three weeks of the student's start date, the direct supervisor and the student should set goals for the work term

4

Supervisor's work term "Student Performance Evaluation"

Before the work term ends, the supervisor completes a "Performance Evaluation".

The supervisor submits the Performance Evaluation to CareerBuzz using a link provided to them via email.

If you have not received the email, please check your spam folder or contact the student's Career Advisor (<http://career.gatech.edu/undergrad-advisors>) to request the link

The supervisor and the student should review and complete the Performance Evaluation before the end of the work term
